DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 29, 30 and 35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Mackenzie (US 6,019,777). Mackenzie discloses a method for entrapping plaque particles against a vascular wall (Figs. 7-10). He discloses a tubular sheath 34 (the distal portion of what Mackenzie describes as a sheath), a deployment catheter 28 (what is referred to by Mackenzie as the sheath), and a tubular member 15,22. As illustrated in Fig. 10, the tubular sheath 34 is distinct from, but unitary with the deployment catheter 28. Inherently, the tubular sheath 34 is attached to the catheter 28.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 103 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

(c) Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under one or more of subsections (e), (f), and (g) of section 102of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.

Claim 31 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mackenzie in view of Walker (US 5,320,604). Mackenzie fails to disclose the use of perforations on the deployment catheter. Nevertheless, Walker discloses a balloon catheter (Fig. 1) having perforations 54 on the catheter to deliver a "plaque solubilizing liquid" (Col. 1, lines 24-30). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the Mackenzie deployment catheter as taught by Walker to add perforations to deliver a "plaque solubilizing liquid."

Claims 32-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(c) as unpatentable over Mackenzie in view of Wijay (US 5,643,278). Mackenzie is silent regarding the sheath material. Nevertheless, Wijay discloses a balloon catheter having a polymer sheath (Col. 4, lines, 1-5), which is strong, flexible, and biocompatible. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the Mackenzie sheath out of polymer as taught by Wijay because polymers are strong, flexible, and biocompatible.

Wijay is silent regarding the yield strength or the tensile strength. Nevertheless, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the sheath having a yield strength of between 50 and 300 psi and a tensile strength of over 2000 psi in order to withstand the pressures and stresses associated with radial expansion (Fig. 10) and advancement through the tortuous path.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 36-53 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
